Red sits opposite green on the color wheel, and thus is its complementary color. In the garden, where a green canvas is a given, the effect is of popping energy and pizzazz. Red attracts attention, but works best at mid- to close range because on the whole it absorbs light and will be lost in a shady border or at a distance.

Stick to the main colors - Red, Blue, Yellow, Black and White - and only later add the other colors. It is better to dedicate time to each color separately. Having "Green week" or "Blue week" is wonderful and works magic in teaching the colors. Usually, when teaching colors over a whole week, the concept is learned very well.
